“ I am the oldest grandchild of Mrs. Leola Wright. I am the oldest daughter of Mr. Curtis Sylvester Brown. I am going to miss my grannie, I know she was tired and ready to go, so for this I rejoice. I know she belongs to God, so when she awakes again, it will be in glory, and I will see her.

I pray my grandmother was proud of me, I am one of the first of her grandchildren to complete my Doctorate in Clinical Pediatric Neuropsychology. Granny will not see me open my first practice, which is bitter sweet. I will dedicate a fountain with my mom and grandmother's that have passed on names engraved on rocks. I stand on the shoulders of great mighty women, that have allowed me to start and complete my dreams.

My grandmother was the first one to take me to a restaurant when I was six years old and teach me the difference between a salad fork and a dinner fork. To say please and thank you. To say my prayers and thank God for everything.

I was born at MUSC. When I was born, you would think the Queen of England was born, for the treatment and sheer exhilaration my grannie expressed at my birth. Everyone on her floor and the floor I was born on knew, Mrs. Leola Wright grandbaby was in the world (9lbs 10ounces).

My grannie was told three years ago she was an inspiration to the medical field. When I saw her in her scrubs, it inspired me to go the medical route. I love my grannies ability to get up and go, and live. There wasn't too many times where I ever really saw my grannie sit still. I knew over the last several years, as she slowed down, she would be leaving us. My grannie did it the right way, she left having poured out so much good to everyone around her. Grannie until we meet again, I love you.
